Two Southport fires

The two-story home above caught fire on the evening of Jan. 19, on the 3300-block of San Vicente Road. The family escaped safely, and neighboring homes were protected, but the home sustained damage to both floors. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Three days earlier, local fire crews were called to the scene of an attic fore on the 3300-block of Jefferson Blvd. in Southport. That fire was contained to the attic, but caused around $20,000 in damage, reports the fire department.

Chief Drummond to retire this June

West Sacramento Police Chief Dan Drummond announced his retirement effective July of this year. Chief Drummond, the City's fourth Police Chief, has served the City since August 2004. He has served in law enforcement for 36 years, reports the City of West Sacramento.

Before West Sacramento, Drummond worked in Sacramento County.

"He was instrumental in the development of contract services with the cities of Citrus Heights, Elk Grove and Rancho Cordova," reported city spokesperson Art Schroeder. "He was designated as the first contract Chief of Police for Citrus Heights.

"West Sacramento is an even safer place thanks, in no small part, to Chief Drummond and the outstanding police force he has led," commented Mayor Christopher Cabaldon in a press release. "Since his appointment as chief, property crime in the city has dropped 30 per cent and violent crime has plummeted by two-thirds."

Chief Drummond emphasized Community Oriented Policing, according to spokesperson Schroeder. During his tenure he was responsible for many programs and activities that supported the Community Oriented Policing philosophy, which focuses on community engagement and partnerships. Problem Oriented Policing (P.O.P.), Community Response Teams, and Compliance Monitoring Teams were implemented under Chief Drummond.

Other programs and accomplishments listed by the city press release:

- Gang Resistance Education and Training (G.R.E.A.T.);
- Expansion of the Neighborhood Watch program;
- Citizen's Community Academy;
- Volunteers in Policing;
- Education and enforcement activity on sales to minors of tobacco and alcohol products;
- Outcome-based performance measures;
- Student attendance outreach program.

Drummond's professional and community involvement included the Yolo County Community Corrections Partnership Executive Committee, Chair of the Collings West Sacramento Teen Center Advisory Board, Chair of the City Employee Giving Campaign and United Way Regional Board of Directors and a member of the California Police Chiefs Legislative Committee.

"All that has been done in the Police Department is a credit to the strong and capable management team and all of the men and women in the department, sworn and non-sworn, who serve the city with dedication and professionalism," said the retiring chief in his press release. "It has been an honor and a pleasure to serve with them."

There was no immediate word from city officials how or when Drummond's replacement would be selected.

'Average' district needs to improve, says Nguyen

News-Ledger's interviews with candidates in the March 5 special school board election continue this week with local businessman Linh Nguyen

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

With a background in computer engineering and in business, Southport's Linh Nguyen believes one of the best ways to start attacking any problem is to measure it. And he believes the measurements are clear for Washington Unified School District:

"Statistically, we are average," Nguyen told the News-Ledger.

Student test scores often have a strong link to a community's economic level. Look at them both if you want to judge how a school district is doing, he said.

LINH NGUYEN
Identify a problem, measure it, attack it

"If we can say that economically, we're a '5,' but what we're achieving is a '7' or '8' out of 10, then that's excellent. But if we're economically a '5' and we're achieving at a '5,' that's just okay."

West Sacramento's school district is scoring at about 760 on the API tests, he said, which is about "average" for a place with an "average" socioeconomic level.

Nguen (pronounced with the "ng" sound followed by "wen," in one syllable) hopes to earn a seat on the local school board next month and help change that.

"That reflection is on the board – that's where the buck stops," he said. "City-wise, you can see there are a lot of successful projects that have been implemented – whether it's (new developments like) the River Cats, Nugget, Home Depot or Ikea. They didn't let the 'average' or 'below average' hold them back. The school district needs to do the same."

"As a person who runs my own company, I understand what you need to do when you govern a multi-million dollar entity. We need to define a clear vision. We need to lay out a clear plan of what we're going to do. We need to always follow up on the plan."

Nguyen, 40, currently works at home, managing his investment portfolio. His wife is a part-time pharmacist, and the couple has three young kids – the oldest two of which are at Bridgeway Island Elementary School.

"I graduated from UC Davis in computer science engineering," he explained. "I went back to Silicon Valley and my first job was at Genentech. I worked mostly in high-tech. After we saved some money, we started our own consulting company. But running a company is very intensive, and we were having our first kid. We decided to move to West Sacramento, which is a very good place to raise kids."

Multiple false alarms will now start drawing fines

City officials announced this month that, beginning March 1, those responsible for more than two false police alarms within a year will accrue a false alarm fine.

The local police department responded to over 3,000 false alarms (over 99 percent of all alarm calls) last year, it reports.

Penalties for the third and fourth false alarms within a year are $200 each. With the fifth false alarm comes a $200 fine plus suspension of the alarm permit.

Reinstating a permit will cost $250.

If you or your alarm company cancel an alarm before a police officer arrives, the alarm won't count.

The City of West Sacramento has contacted with "Public Safety Corporation/Cry Wolf" to administer the permits and false alarm notifications.

For more information, go to the city website at www.cityofwestsacramento.org (go to "How do I" and then "Apply for" and "Alarm permit" or call 1-855-694-8281 to obtain an alarm permit or learn more.

Alarms without a permit may draw a $100 fine.

Special council meeting

The West Sacramento City Council is scheduled to meet yesterday and today in special session to discuss strategic planning issues.

The council will meet with a facilitator to talk about "a broad range of city matters, procedures, policies and functions."

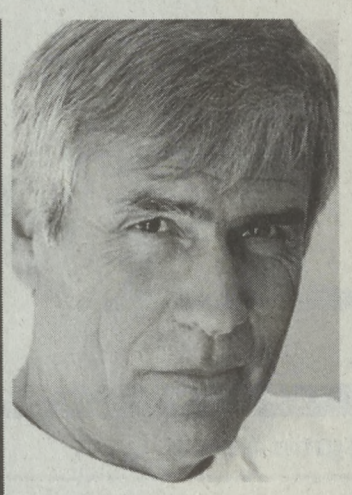
The meeting today (Jan. 30) begins in open session at 8:30 a.m. Both meetings are at the civic center, 1110 West Capitol Avenue, rooms 157/160 in the Galleria.

CORRECTION

Last week, the News-Ledger reported on a program using volunteers from River City High School to help younger students with reading.

The "Reading Buddies" program at the library begins Feb. 15, and not Feb. 5 as reported. The News-Ledger regrets the error.

Trials & tribulations of a clothes shopper



My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Many years ago, I wrote a rather lengthy column about how much I hate to go shopping for clothes. I talked about how I have never quite understood the importance most people seem to place on their clothes, especially here in West Sacramento where the weather is so mild most of the year that we don't really need a lot of them. Plus it seems to me that almost everything to do with buying clothes is designed to make a person miserable. First I have to hang around in crowded malls where I can never find a parking space, where the help is usually rude and too busy to wait on me, and where there's so much to choose from that I can never make up my mind what to buy. If I finally do find something I like, I have to try it on, which means disrobing in a strange place with curtains that never fully close and struggling with a bunch of tags, buttons, zippers, hangers, and cleverly hidden (and very sharp) pins.

And then, without my shoes on, I have to wander around in search of a young girl half my age and ask her, "Well, do you think this fits?" She always says 'yes', even if I've selected something a size or two off, and assures me that everything will be just fine once I've washed it a few times.

I also used to ask the saleslady, "So, how do you think this looks on me?", until one day it finally dawned on me , what is the poor woman going to say – "Well, sir, that particular shirt and pair of pants you've just selected actually makes you look like a bloody clown!"

So, over the years, I have found it much easier and less time-consuming to simply find one kind of shirt and pants I like, memorize the size that fits, and every four or five years, buy a half-dozen or so of them in different colors. It doesn't exactly make me the most fashionable guy in town, but it works for me, and makes the whole process a lot less intimidating.

Most of the women I know, however, seem to see shopping for clothes in a completely different light. They actually look forward to it, plan whole days (even weekends) around it, and in some extreme cases, turn it into a kind of art form. They painstakingly match colors to produce coordinated outfits, pick out just the right pair of shoes to bring the whole thing together, and can even somehow figure out if a dress actually fits by just holding it up on its hanger in front of them.

Anyway, I was telling a friend all this the other day and when I got to the part about women really loving to shop for clothes, she suddenly stopped me and said, "Have you ever taken teenage daughters out to shop for their school clothes?"

"No," I admitted.

"Well, take my word for it, once you have taken teenage girls out to get their school outfits, the love of shopping for clothes is never quite the same again!"

"How so?" I asked.

"Well, for instance, the last time I took mine I knew it was going to be a long day as soon as we walked into the first store and got on the elevator."

"What happened?"

"For starters they both began laughing hysterically at this poor lady in a mini-skirt up ahead of us who, on closer examination, had these very prominent-looking toilet seat marks on the back of her thighs. And when she looked back to see what my girls were still giggling about, I just about died. And then the rest of the day only got worse from there."

"What happened next?"

"Next came all the drama at the lingerie department."

"There was drama at the lingerie department?" I asked with interest.

"Well, it's kind of a long story, but I had finally insisted that both of my girls needed to start wearing a bra to school and when I told them I would take them over to the local box store to get them each a couple, they about had a cow."

"How come?"

"It's actually partly my own fault because ever since they were young I've taken them to eclectic, artsy, and expensive clothes boutiques, so they have become quite spoiled and they wanted nothing to do with wearing cheap bras. They said all their friends would make fun of them. I'm just hoping that none of those over-sexed boys at their school notice one way or the other! Anyway, we finally found a few fancy ones they liked so it was off to endure the real torture – the shoe department."

'For starters they both began laughing hysterically at this poor lady in a mini-skirt up ahead of us who, on closer examination, had these very prominent-looking toilet seat marks on the back of her thighs.'

"What was so bad about the shoe department?"

"Are you kidding? When my daughters go shoe shopping they never leave the store until they have basically tried on every single shoe in the place! Plus nowadays all the different colors and styles are endless. But what made this trip particularly unbearable was that even after we had spent hours finding the perfect pair of shoes for my youngest daughter, when we finally got home and she started walking around in them, she discovered they were actually a size too small, so back to the store we had to go. Now it's bad enough taking my girls shoe shopping once or twice a year, but to have to do it twice in the same weekend is almost unbearable. Plus we never did find a pair of shoes my oldest daughter liked. And do you want to know why?"

"Why?"

"She told me, 'Mom, it's not that there is anything particularly wrong with all these shoes I've tried on, but I'm afraid none of them have really grabbed me and asked that I take them home'."

Local youth sports:

West Sac's youth soccer, basketball have matured

By Don Schatzel

BY DON SCHATZEL
News-Ledger columnist

I hope everyone had a great holiday season and Happy New Year! All the best to you for the upcoming year.

Congratulations to U-12 (under age 12) Arsenal girls soccer for making it to the finals of the Presidents Cup for the second year in a row! Unfortunately, after winning three games in a weekend, they lost the final 3-2 to British American Club. Laura Garcia and Julyana Lara did the scoring for Arsenal, completing another great season.

The Under-16 Hooligans12 completed their Presidents Cup, and after completing a season with 40 practices and 14 games, are poised to move into River City High School's soccer season with high hopes and confidence! Taylor Jacky and Andrea Saucedo were captains of Hooligans12 and Taylor lead the team in scoring.

Now, local soccer teams are on the way to the indoor season at "El Azteca" and "Off the Wall" facilities to prepare for next season.

In the last article, I mentioned a lot of softball players and you know how it works when you start mentioning people: you forget some. I forgot a few, including Hayley Luna and Cameron McGinnes, who are terrific local players.

I was reviewing my list and 90 percent, if not all, the girls on the all high school all star list had their beginning softball training in the West Sacramento Girls Softball Little League – now registering for the upcoming spring and summer season. I know my family had a great time in that program.

Girls softball starts here in West Sac, and league president Frances Lara will do a great job as usual!

"Soccer is basketball played on grass with feet and with twice as many players."

Johan Cruyff, a great Dutch soccer player from the past, said that.

It is fun to watch the Washington Unified girls after-school basketball program again this year. It's a league where the coaches coach to teach basketball, not just win games. The quality of play has improved so much. Picks, press, zones in-bounds plays, 4-5 passes then the good shot, are the norm now.

The players have reached the point where sometimes seem better than the referees. The refs can no longer chat with the parents on the way down the court.

The girls know the rules and know when they got away with something. Just watch the little smiles on their faces that show up on occasion. The coaches can coach, the girls can play and they no longer just give the ball to the best player to go coast to coast then throw up a 20 footer.

Not any more! Yours truly and a Recreation Supervisor for the City of West Sac started the basketball league years ago. Supervisor Troy Turner is no longer with the league, but the City Parks and Rec program has 350 boys and 139 girls playing in their program. I think Troy would be very proud, as I am.

In the "Wow" category I happened to be visiting relatives in Gilroy and they have a new high school, "Christopher High School," named after Don Christopher of Christopher Garlic. The Garlic Festival brings in 100,000 people in a weekend to Gilroy for their festival and Don was big motivator behind its creation.

The school district needed two million dollars to complete their sports complex at the high school, and according to the Gilroy newspaper, Christopher called and gave them 1 million dollars then called back, and asked "How much do you need?"

When told another million was needed, Christopher answered, "OK, put me down for two million!"

Life is good in garlic but, many of us know the Klein family here particularly Alyssa Klein (everyone calls her "Lulu"" is moving to Gilroy and she will attend Christopher School. Gilroy already has great softball players, so I really wish they take ours away. We will miss the Klein family and wish them the best!

Blast from the past!

Watching UCLA football linebacker Coach Jeff Ulbrich:

Before UCLA, he played for the 49ers. Before that University of Hawaii, and before that, Live Oak HS in Morgan Hill. Before that, he was a starting center forward on a U-12 (under age 12) team I coached. We would probably pass each other on the street now and not recognize each other, but it's great to see young kids grow up and be successful!

More community involvement: Centennial Rotary Club of West Sac just donated $200 to the youth boxing club in town. West Sac has a great boxing history and tradition and if the donation gets more kids involved, yahoo! Centennial also donated $1,000 to the West Sac Relay for Life which is coming up and planning is underway.

An interesting piece of community history was shared with me recently. Who was the first person in West Sac to get on base and score the first run at Memorial Park, the site of Little League games?

It was Jim Thompson in 1956! Jim is an outstanding member of the West Sacramento Trail Riders Association. Ron Morazzinni, the president of the horse riding group, is now working with the City of West Sacramento on its bike and pedestrian path update to remember the equestrian community in town..

Great stuff, and that's why we love living here.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY NOTES

The Sacramento River registered 4 ft. 1 in., U. S. gauge, at the S. P. bridge yesterday.

Local sportsmen have been complaining during the past few days that ducks are becoming mighty scarce in this section of the State, owing no doubt, to the continuous bombarding that has been going on since the opening of the season. Great flights of ducks have been seen moving southward during the past few days, indicating that rain is near at hand. Rice harvesting having robbed the feeding grounds of the ducks undoubtedly had some effect on the flight of the birds to the south.

No fish of any particular amount have been landed during the past two weeks and no men have found it profitable to spend their time in fishing. The salmon season will be closed until November 15.

The Washington Star Club held its election last Wednesday night at the Cameron home. Francis Bennetts was re-elected president, A. Eddy, vice-president; Frank Gale, treasurer; E. Manchester, secretary; J. De Riso, warden. Another officer was added to the officials of the club as reporter and to that position Erlan Manchester was elected. Following the election the young men spent the evening in games very enjoyably.

taken up by Constable Buckingham last Monday on the levee near the M Street bridge and charged with vagrancy, was sent to Woodland by Judge Barry for 60 days in an effort to cure her of her vicious practices. was a respected little lady several years ago before prohibition came. She indulged somewhat in liquor and when prohibition came, being unable to secure her favorite beverage any more, she started to use some narcotics and gradually travelled down the path that lead to the Woodland jail. Lately she has been more or less of a nuisance to the Sacramento police authorities who have been hounding her, and she promised to get out of town. Immediately after passing the bridge at Sacramento she was arrested by Constable Buckingham, with the result mentioned above.

Joe Lawrence is having considerable trouble recovering a prize boar which strayed from his premises about two weeks ago. The animal strayed to the premises of C. R. Borghesi on B Street and is being held by Borghesi for charges for feed and care during the time it has been on the latter's premises. Lawrence declares the animal to be a thoroughbred valued at about $150 and is a prize swine that he raised after a great deal of care and trouble. Joe is very fond of the boar because it is so gentle and easily handled.

Earl Pankost left here last Monday to do rice hauling in the rice growing section around Gridley. He was accompanied by Bill Hart. Tom Enwright and Bud De Riso have also gone to the rice fields to do hauling.

Work being done by the U. S. Government in the vicinity of the M Street bridge has forced Ed Curry to find a new anchorage for his boat. At first he tied it up to the ways of the Sacramento Transportation Co but objection was made because steamers and barges were continually moving around in that direction and were liable to crush the small craft. Yesterday Curry had his boat anchored in the middle of the stream, but since that practice is against the navigation laws he will be forced to move it again.

The Government is doing considerable work in removing old snags that have been encumbering the river bed north of the M Street bridge. Several of these have been blown up with dynamite but failed to float even after the wooden hulks were released from their bed of dirt. They will have to be hauled to the river bank to dry out before they can be disposed of.

Mrs. Florence Johnson of Stockton is here to spend a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Eugene have returned from a visit with relatives in Fallon.

Teachers of the Washington School will attend the Yolo County Institute, to be held the latter part of next week in Woodland.

Miss Ernestine Frommelt returned from Sonoma County.

Mrs. Frank De Riso has returned from a visit in Oakland.

Mrs. E. J. Flint, who has been ill at her home, is improved.

Mrs. Henry Jasper of Wheatland was a visitor on Saturday with relatives in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon and Miss Ethel Cook came over from Napa for a visit with friends. Gordon was among the initiates into the Mystic Shrine at Saturday's ceremonial. Washington residents who were also candidates were J. N. Bennett and F. L. White, Jr.

A group of a dozen Washington young people enjoyed a picnic on the Sacramento River yesterday. They were chaperoned by Mrs. A. A. Dassenville.

Mrs. Irma McKinnon and daughter of Oakland are guests at the home of Mrs. William Norton.

Mrs. Jack Painter and son returned to Oakland after a visit of two weeks at the home of Mrs. Clarence Painter.

SECOND STREET IMPROVEMENT FROM HARRIETT TO BRIDGE

Grading of Second Street from Harriett Street to the M Street bridge has been progressing during the past two days under the direction of Joe Lawrence.

It will be remembered that about a year ago the section between Margaret Street and the bridge was graded and gravelled by Lawrence, but owing to a shortage of funds at that time work was left unfinished. Now that section will be completed as well as the section north of Margaret as far as Herriett Street.

During the winter season this well travelled roadway has been a bad mess of chuck holes and mud. It has been a menace to trucks and automobiles with any small load, because the surfacing was so soft that any vehicle might mire at a moment's notice.

Second Street is the principal street in Washington and should be maintained in passable condition. North of Ann Street to Rocky Point is in very good condition, having been placed in splendid shape a few years ago by grading and graveling.

There only remains a low spot between Ann and Harriett Streets that should be built up as soon as possible.

Supervisor Leinberger has signified his intention to have this work done as soon as that portion south of Harriett Street is finished.

ERROR IN FIGURES CORRECTED AT REQUEST

In the issue of October 6th an error was made in reporting the claim allowed by the Board of Supervistors to Harbinson Bros. In that issue of the Independent it was reported that Harbinson Bros. had been allowed a claim of $1,920 for road work. This was a typographical error, because the claim only amounted to $192.00, which was paid by the board.

BRIDGE WATCHMAN KILLED; JURY VERDICT CLAIMS ACCIDENTAL

Patrick Crimmins, 70, 1104 Q Street, a bridgetender for the Southern Pacific Company, was killed late Saturday when he was run down by an automobile while closing the gates of the Southern Pacific bridge.

Crimmins had closed the south gate and had the north gate half closed when a machine crashed into it and knocked him off the end of the bridge. Crimmins fell 35 feet to the pier supporting and received a fracture of the skull and numerous cuts and bruises.

He was rushed to the Southern Pacific hospital where he died at 9:50 o'clock.

Southern Pacific Officer Andrew O'Brien reports the name of the driver of the machine to be B. B. Lovell, 2010 L Street. A check of the address reveals the fact that B. B. Lovell resides there. Lovell is the man who picked up and rushed to the emergency hospital Patrolman Stephens H. Brinckerhoff, who was found with a fractured skull on the sidewalk at Twentieth and L Streets Saturday night.

Crimmins was formerly a rancher in the North Sacramento district. He was also in the dairy business in that district for a number of years. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Minnie Robinson, a resident of Sacramento, Mrs. Annie Catlor of Reno, and one son. His wife has been dead for a number of years.

An inquest held last Wednesday night by Coroner Skelton exonerated Lovell from all blame. The verdict of the jury read that Crimmins came to his death by "being struck by the rebound of the gate or barrier on the S. P. bridge after being hit by an automobile driven by B. B. Lovell. We hereby exonerate said Lovell from all blame."

KING LEE PRESENTED WITH VALUABLE STAR

At the annual banquet of Spanish War Veterans in American township or North Sacramento, King Lee, the Constable of the township, was presented with a valuable trophy last Monday night by his comrades.

The trophy was in the shape of a specially engraved solid silver star that is highly prized by the owner. Lee was a resident of Washington for several years but moved to the North Sacramento district when the Haggin Grant property was opened to colonization.

J. E. STRONG IS STRONGER FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY

During the past week J. E. Strong candidate for District Attorney of Yolo County, has been making an active canvass in behalf of his campaign.

In the lower section of the county he has been making a house to house canvass and the impression that he made during that canvass is beginning to show in his behalf.

"Dick" Strong, as he is familiarly known, is one of the oldest politicians in Yolo County, of very pronounced Democratic principles, and always a strong supporter of the Democratic ticket. Four years ago he was beaten at the finals by C. C. McDonald, and many who voted against him at that time have since learned to regret their action.

Strong is aproachable, pleasant, courteous, and just. He has never been afflicted with the "big head." He is of the people and requests their votes on the same principle that Jim Monroe has been elected on several occasions.

Strong has been a member of the bar for many years and is thoroughly qualified to fit into the position of District Attorney, fortified with all the qualifications that would make him an efficient County Prosecutor.

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Perks of Being a Wallflower" (PG-13) -- Charlie (Logan Lerman) is a lonely 10th-grader just hoping to make it through the school year. He has no close friends, and no hopes of finding any joy in his teen years. Charlie's perspective changes after he gets swooped up by two seniors (Emma Watson and Ezra Miller) who show him that life is bigger than our insecurities.

The film is based on a novel by Stephen Chbosky, who adapted it for the screen -- and directed it himself. And it totally works. The movie is funny, heartfelt and sensitive. Anybody who has been or still is a teenager can find something in this story that speaks to them.

Ezra Miller, Emma Watson in 'The Perks of Being a Wallflower'

"The Sessions" (R) -- Mark (John Hawkes) is a writer who can't write. Since he caught polio as a child, he's spent most of his time in an iron lung (a giant tube that helps him breath), and the rest of his time on his back, hardly able to move. He's also 34 and a virgin. After talking it over with his caregiver and his priest (William H. Macy), Mark gets the blessing to see a sex therapist (Helen Hunt), a licensed professional who can walk him through his first few times. It's a heartwarming, grownup movie about sex. The experience is funny, relatively easygoing and rather uplifting.

"Bully" (PG-13) -- This documentary explores what bullying does and has done to the youth of America. Immediately, the stakes are set high. Documentarian Lee Hirsch finds two families who have lost children to suicide after they were bullied. The movie also follows Alex, a boy who is bullied every day because of the way he looks. The filmmaker goes up close with kids, parents and administrators to see how bullying is handled.

The message at the core of the movie is that not enough is being done. Rather than explore the causes of bully behavior, the film focuses on how school officials, legislators and communities have shrugged off the effects of bullying, while children still endure senseless cruelty every day.

"The Man with the Iron Fists" (R) -- This is a cheesey, overdone pile of kung-fu runoff -- and it's all clearly made with love. Thank writer, director and star of the film, RZA. The movie is an obvious love letter to the bargain-bin action movies of his youth. In 19th-century China, a remote village is prey to a band of vicious outlaws. It's up to the town blacksmith to lead a curious band of unique fighters through a series of confusing, cluttered and ridiculous action scenes. It's gory, it's action-packed, and it's hard to follow -- in a fun way.

"Quiet: The Power of Introverts in a World That Can't Stop Talking"
By Susan Cain
(Broadway Books, $16)
Reviewed by Rose McAllister Croke

When "Quiet: The Power of Introverts in a World That Can't Stop Talking" by Susan Cain was first published in hardcover in 2012, it spent 42 weeks on The New York Times best-seller list. Now available in paperback, "Quiet" will once again spark a national conversation about the power of introversion in a world that reveres gregarious, loud-talking extroverts.

A self-acknowledged introvert, Ms. Cain argues that our culture holds a deliberate bias toward the Extrovert Ideal (the highly verbal alpha personality) while dramatically undervaluing the strengths of introverts (introspection, persistence and sensitivity). Yet many of the greatest achievers of the 20th century were introverts, including Eleanor Roosevelt, George Orwell, Rosa Parks, Marcel Proust, Warren Buffet, Dr. Seuss and Apple co-founder Steve Wozniak.

In Part One of "Quiet," Cain charts the rise of the Extrovert Ideal and how its far-reaching effects permeate our culture. In Part Two, she explores the psychology of temperament and the roles of hereditary and free will in personality. In Part Three, Cain compares the differences between Western culture,

The Kitchen Diva

BY Angela Shelf Medearis

"Family Cookbook a Love Story With Recipes"

My favorite kinds of cookbooks are ones that have been inspired by family recipes. I enjoy reading the stories about the family member that prepared the dishes in the cookbook and trying the recipes that have been passed down from one generation to the next. "Nahima's Hands: Unique Mediterranean Cuisine" by Andrea Cassell is a loving tribute to her grandmother (Nahima) and her flavorful, Mediterranean recipes.

What started out as a granddaughter's love for her grandmother and a desire for her four children, and subsequent generations, to carry on these cooking traditions is now a moving tribute to family and Mediterranean cuisine.

Andrea says that she wants people to read her cookbook and say "this looks easy and I can create this without a lot of work." She also wants to encourage families to come back to the table. She says that the cookbook is not just about food, but about "our heritage, friends and families coming together through the food we eat."

Andrea's Syrian grandmother, Nahima (Abouid) Albert, immigrated to the United States shortly after marrying her husband, Antonio in 1926. They owned and operated a corner grocery store in Miami. This is where young Andrea spent her childhood days while her mother and father went to work. It was there at Nahima's knee that Andrea says she learned about hospitality and cooking. Her grandmother worked all day in the grocery store, and still found the time to cook dinner for her parents to take home. Andrea witnessed her grandmother's selfless love and compassion daily. She was always in the kitchen helping her grandmother prepare food. Nahima passed away in 2009. She lived to be 101.

Her grandmother's love and talents with food inspired Andrea to create "Nahima's Hands: Unique Mediterranean Cuisine." While she includes many of the Mediterranean dishes that she learned from her grandmother in the cookbook, it also contains some of her original recipes that are easy to prepare.

The cookbook contains a variety of Mediterranean appetizers, soups and salads, rice and legumes, vegetarian, beef, pork and chicken, slow-cooker recipes, desserts and breads, and many more. Wine pairings are offered for several recipes, making this cookbook a unique family entertainment guide.

"Sharing the love of cooking with your hands," is Andrea's motto. "I hold my grandmother in my hands everyday with my cookbook, so I can never forget her."

You can order Andrea's cookbook "Nahima's Hands: Unique Mediterranean Cuisine" for $19.95, plus shipping and handling, at www.nahimashands.com or andrea@nahimashands.com

Here is Nahima's recipe for Tabbouleh, a traditional Middle Eastern salad with fresh herbs and tomatoes.

NAHIMA'S WHEAT AND PARSLEY SALAD

3/4 cup (No. 1 fine) bulgur wheat
3/4 cup green onions, root ends removed, white and green parts finely chopped
1/4 cup fresh mint, chopped
2 cups fresh, curly parsley, finely chopped
2 medium tomatoes, chopped
1/4 cup fresh squeezed lemon juice
1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

1. In a medium bowl, place the bulgur wheat and cover it with cold water.
Let it soak for 20 minutes. Drain excess water, as needed.
2. In another small bowl, mix together onion, mint, parsley, tomatoes, lemon juice, oil, and the salt and pepper. Pour lemon mixture over bulgur wheat. Stir gently to combine. Cover and refrigerate. Serve cold. Serves 6.

Having two children in the public elementary school and another headed that way has generated some concerns, said Nguyen.

"I think I'm in the same shoes as a lot of parents," he said. "My kids are in first and third grade. I can see the future coming for them. High school is coming."

One friend typifies his concern:

"When I told him I was running for the board, the first thing he said is, 'Great, I'll support you.' The second thing he said was, 'At this point, I wouldn't let my kid go to River City High School.' The sad fact is that (the friend himself) went to River City High School, and his wife went to River City High School – not the new campus, but the old one. Something like that speaks volumes about how people perceive the high school."

Nguyen is concerned by the numbers – and RCHS is higher than the state in some statistics, like expulsion rates, he said.

Between that and issues like bullying and campus security, "I don't feel my kid is safe to go to this high school" right now, said Nguyen.

How do you fix that?

Nguyen believes that the first step is to identify the problems facing WUSD, whether they be test scores or campus safety.

"I would like the (school) board to acknowledge the problems," he said. "That's the first step in solving a problem. Secondly, I would like to know how we are going to measure the issues – for example, what percentage of the kids are leaving the district (to go to school elsewhere)? If we can first do a measurement on that, we can improve it. We don't (now) have a way to measure that. Just anecdotal evidence."

Nguyen says he has been to several school board meetings and seen others on cable TV.

"I see a lot of positive coming from the board we now have," he said. "We could do much better. We have 7.000-plus students in the district. We have an obligation to help these 7,000-plus kids to achieve, to reach their full potential."

He added that, fiscally, the board is "doing okay with what we have." And with Proposition 30 passing and bringing more stability to school funding, and with the economy finally improving, he expected the school's financial climate to start getting better.

How does he feel about charter schools?

Nguyen said he would examine them on a "case by case" basis.

"I'm not encumbered by a political agenda. . . If someone comes to me and asks about a charter school for our district, I would say, 'show me the empirical evidence.' When we make a change like that, there's going to be a financial cost. The research has to support (a need for the charter school)."

Nguyen thinks that voters should look at the time commitment of being a school board member when they weigh their decision of whom to elect.

"One of the basic elements (of the job) is that you have to be willing to put in the time," he said. "If you look at our city council, they have 22 subcommittees, reaching out to the schools, the River Cats, the port, to Sacramento County. Board-wise, we're not reaching out to other districts around us. We're not reaching out to resources we have. We're not reaching out to UC Davis or Sacramento State."

"If the board was functioning at an excellent level, we would have a direct path where Sacramento State and Davis and vocational programs would come here and work with the kids, and explain why some subject is important. We want to engage a kid, whether they are going to be a mechanic or an engineer or something."

With a background in management and in science, Nguyen believes he can help the board do this.

What does he see as a board member's job duties?

"One of the requirements is that we need a board that's passionate," he answered. "Statistically and empirical data-wise, we're average. That's a result of our economics. To be successful, we have to be innovative."

Has Nguyen been endorsed by the mayor or by school board members?

"Purposely, I've tried not to coincide with the political side," he answered. "I call it the political machine. I don't want to reach out there, because I want to be independent. The first thing is that the school board is for the kids. The second thing is, it's for the kids. And the third thing is, it's for the kids."

Nguyen's prior involvement in the community include helping to coach youth soccer, baseball and basketball in the elementary school and city leagues. He also helps with the local Cub Scout troop.

The candidate said he is funding his school board campaign with "mostly my own money," and is also walking precincts.

where the individual is deemed most important, and Eastern culture, where the success of the group is valued above that of the self.

In Part Four, she offers practical advice on everything from how to network if you dislike small talk and being a "pretend extrovert" when it is beneficial, to better negotiating introvert-extrovert relationships and helping an introverted child to navigate school and foster friendships.

"Quiet" commands attention by championing the power of silence and solitude in a world that often rewards attention-seeking behavior. It is a book that will get people talking at a time when the pressure to entertain and sell ourselves -- and never visibly be anxious -- keeps escalating.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on a property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 1-800-281-8219 or visit this Internet Web site www.recontrustco.com, using the file number assigned to this case NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE TS No. 12-0001488.
